SEPT. TRANSITION

USO-Metro has developed a robust selection of programs designed to develop the professional and personal skills needed to thrive in the military-civilian transition.

Each month, career experts join industry professionals in fine-tuning everything from resume writing to interviewing, and host networking and career events for one-on-one job and company information sessions.

Our program partners are critical to the success of our transitions events—their career knowledge and industry expertise allow us to greatly expand professional skills and opportunities for our members.

GLOBAL USO SUPPORTING AMERICAN SOLDIERS IN AFGHAN WITHDRAWAL

Across the United States and around the world, we have watched the events in Afghanistan unfold as Americans leave the country. The USO was activated at the beginning of the operation and will remain by the military's side until it is complete.

The USO has been providing round-the-clock support to service members carrying out military operations in various locations around the world, offering care and comfort to our brave men and women in uniform. The locations include bases in the United States, Europe, and the Middle East. Service members were provided with care packages, meals, hygiene items, internet access, and support for units at overseas staging areas preparing for operations. Americans who wish to support our troops through the USO should visit www.USO.org. There, they can donate or send a message of thanks to our service members.

GIANT ROUND UP RAISES $1.25 MILLION

Giant Foods, a longstanding partner and supporter of USO-Metro, finished off a massively successful Round Up campaign in DC area stores this summer. We are honored to have received $1.25 Million in customer donations. A fundraiser of this magnitude will be crucial in the development and execution of our mission-focused programs.

USO-METRO GOES BACK TO SCHOOL

The USO is only as strong as its members - past, present, and future - and we strive to strengthen them in any way needed. We were thrilled to host a series of Back To School drives last month, such as this one sponsored by Planet Technologies at Joint Base Anacostia-Bolling, for military families to grab everything needed for their kids to thrive this school year.
